Cyclone Disasters

A TORNADO STRIKES A KANSAS TOWN

TOPEKA, Ks, May 15—A destructive cyclone struck the northern part of this county yesterday and swept away a portion of the town of Meriden. About 10 o'clock in the morning a black cloud came up suddenly from the southeast, and sweeping through the eastern portion of the town did fearful work. In almost a moment a large number of buildings were destroyed and eighteen or twenty people more or less bodily injured.

ANOTHER IN OHIO

FOREST, OHIO, May 15—The Chicago express which passed through this place at 8 this morning two hours late. Almost every window in the train was broken and a number of passengers slightly hurt from flying glass. One man had his right eye destroyed by a piece of glass. Train men and passengers report that the storm was the worst they ever experienced.

FOREST, Ohio, May 15—This place and vicinity were visited by a tornado last night about 11 o'clock. The air was filled with balls of fire which exploded with a loud snapping sound. Full particulars, except those brought by farmers living near the track of the storm, cannot be obtained. There are known to be five persons killed and a number injured. The residence of W. L. McElree was totally destroyed, killing McElree and his mother in law. A house near by was destroyed, killing a man. The house of Thomas Moore was razed to the ground, injuring three persons seriously. A school house and church two miles northeast were destroyed. Samuel Packard was fatally hurt and his wife injured by the blowing down of his residence. Center school, one mile west, was laid to the ground. In Blanchard River valley fences, telegraph poles, trees and many houses are laid low. In Forest the Methodist church building was demolished. Three deaths have just been reported from south of Dunkirk.

MICHIGAN VISITED

LANSING, Mich, May 15—A cyclone formed a mile north of Lansing at the edge of Jones lake last night and swept in a northeast direction levelling fences and woods and tearing buildings into fragments. So far as heard from no one was seriously injured. The whirlwind passed across the big Chandler marsh four miles from here nearly in the middle striking a Michigan Central freight train unroofing cars and hurling the conductor into a ditch.

ALLEGAN, Mich, May 15—A heavy wind and rain storm struck this city at 5:30 in yesterday flooding the streets. Five brick stores were unroofed. All stocks were badly damaged.

A TRAIN IN A TORNADO

PITTSBURG, May 15—The Chicago express on the Fort Wayne road had a rough experience passing through the tornado which struck eastern Ohio last night. Lightning flashed continually. From the time the train left Fort Wayne, at 8 p m rain descended almost solidly until Salem was passed. Such a storm the passengers had never seen before, and the ladies of whom quite a number were on board were greatly frightened and the gentlemen were scared themselves so as not to be much use in allaying the fears of the women. The wind steadily increased in fury, and the breaking of trees made a concord of wild sounds. The train passed Forest, [illegible] miles west of Pittsburg, about 10:00 p m. The engineer was then ditching the locomotive along at about thirty miles an hour. He began to put on more steam, and which about three miles from Kirby the storm was at its height. Suddenly there was a dull roar in the distance and then the cyclone came across the level plain on the south side of the track and catching a big tree tore it up by its roots and flung it across the cars. One limb struck the locomotive and cut the cow catcher in two. Another limb fell on the platform and steps of the first car and demolished it. Other branches smashed in windows along three ordinary cars and two Pullman sleepers. Telegraph poles came down at the same time, and rocks and bushes flew through the air in riotous scurry. Car windows were smashed to pieces, cracked and splintered and glass flew in every direction. The train kept on the rails and the engineer by applying the air brakes brought the cars to a standstill in 200 yards. Every passenger was in a paroxysm of fear. The sleepers were transformed into dens of wildly excited men and women. Railway men kept fairly cool and as soon as they could assisted in restoring confidence. The storm continued. The air was still filled with flying branches of trees and stones while the glare of light into illuminated from the clouds. It heightened the horror of the scene. Though every window in the sleepers Baden and Salamis were fractured and almost every pane in the other cars smashed it is remarkable that very few passengers were hurt. Mr. C. C. Lipe, a merchant of Canton, O., was in his berth in the car Salamis when a tree shivered the glass above him and drove the splinters under his eyelids so that the eye was literally cut out. A lady in the same car who refused to give her name was also cut, though not seriously, about the face. A few others had their hands cut. The storm did not much abate, except that the tornado passed away. An idea of its force may be conceived from the fact that rocks were blown into the cars on the south side with sufficient impetus left to pierce the west windows as if they were bullets from Gatling guns. None of the roofs of the cars were much damaged, but the locomotive boiler was dented in several ways and the smokestack was knocked out of a straight line. After about an hour's delay the train started again and in due time reached Crestline without further accident. There a locomotive was procured and the battered cars came on to Pittsburg reaching the union depot one hour and a half late a good deal of time being made up on the run. When the train arrived here it looked as if it had been riddled by sharpshooters and a battery of heavy artillery.

DETAILS OF THE STORM

CLEVELAND, May 15—A Kenton, Ohio special to the Leader says: One of the most terrible and damaging storms ever known in this section of the country passed over the northern part of this county last night about 11 o'clock. Its path is marked with widespread destruction and death. The storm commenced on a farm known as Whiteside farm eight miles north of the city of Kenton and on it stood a new house which now lies in ruins. From this point the storm moved east destroying life and property. A barn owned by Henry Gerbach was blown off its foundation. The orchard of Michael Zeiker was totally destroyed and the roof blown off his barn. Houses belonging to James Fisher and M Surplus were totally destroyed and the members of the family badly hurt. Wm McElroy was struck by lightning and instantly killed. A church known as Higgins church was blown flat to the ground. David Higgins' house was shattered. A school house in the center of Jackson township was entirely destroyed. A new barn belonging to W H Fleming of this city was blown to fragments. The damage cannot be stated but will reach into hundreds of thousands.

CLEVELAND, May 15—A Leader special from Forest, Ohio, says: The storm here last night was one of the most fearful that ever visited this section of country. It came up suddenly about 10 o'clock, inky black clouds being livid with brilliant light, which made the atmosphere as bright as day. A roaring, noise accompanied the storm in this vicinity. It swept over a track half a mile wide and nine miles long, not striking the town to any extent. Wm McElroy, wife and two children and mother in law, Mrs Higgins, were buried in the ruins of a large brick house, and the last named killed. The rest were injured, the last named fatally. Mrs McElroy dug the others out from the ruins. Mrs Lees was killed in her house. Isaac Lambert, 80 years of age, was buried under his house and fatally injured. A. L. Packard was fatally hurt by falling timbers. Thos Moore was buried under the ruins of a large frame house and badly hurt. Charles Packard and J. N. Thompson, sleeping in the same bed in this house, were carried a long distance and landed safely in bed. Thomas Hart and wife were blown from bed in the second story and the latter perhaps fatally injured. The ten-year old son of Joseph Rimmel had his collar bone broken and was otherwise hurt. Two churches, Baptist and Methodist Protestant were destroyed. Two brick school houses were destroyed, the roof of one being carried a quarter of a mile. Trees were uprooted by the acre, and hundreds of orchards are completely gone. Some farms are swept clean of everything. A large number of sheep and horses were killed. Feathers were blown from chickens, trees were stripped of their bark, ground plowed up, and devastation and ruin are on every side.

In Wyandotte county great damage was done. The village of Lovel is reported destroyed. Great damage is reported in Seneca county. One man says the air was filled with balls of fire. He saw strange lights. Others corroborate his story. The light under the dark clouds looked like that from a large gas well. A great number of people are without homes, and the sight along the track of the storm is terrible. Some farms are made almost worthless. The loss is about $350,000 or $100,000 at the present estimate.

A Strike Threatened

ST LOUIS, May 15—Employes of the Laclede Gas company, which furnishes a large portion of the residents of the city with gas, struck today for the adoption of the eight hour system. The strike includes all those engaged in the manufacture of gas. The city is to be affected by the strike and no street lights will be possible after to-morrow unless the strike should be settled before then.

Postmaster Speer Acquitted

DENVER, May 15—The trial of Postmaster Speer of this city upon an indictment for perjury in entering publication in Middle park was concluded in the United States district court this evening after a session lasting four days. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty in less than ten minutes after receiving Judge Hallett's charge. The verdict was received with tumultuous applause by the crowd that filled the court room, the United States marshal being unable to restore order for some time. The entire city approved the verdict and a most intense feeling exists among all classes against U. S. District Attorney Hubbard, it being universally believed that the prosecution was the solicitation of malice brought about to secure Speer's rejection by the senate that another might be appointed.

Shoemakers Shut Out

STONEHAM, Mass, May 15—Several large shoe manufacturers here shut down to-night for an indefinite period owing to the strike of 200 cutters several weeks ago for an eight per cent advance. It is stated that 15 of 17 factories will probably stop work altogether in the next 48 hours.

A Drunken Row

DENVER, May 15—A Salida special to the News reports a row between drunken charcoal burners at Lowe's Canon last night during which Ninemeyer, a rough character, stabbed John O'Malley, who is expected to die. Ninemeyer is still at large.

Alderman Jachne's Trial

NEW YORK, May 15—The trial of Alderman Jachne for bribery continued to-day. Counsel for defense moved that the testimony of Inspector Byrnes and Detective Cosgrove as to the alleged confession of defendant be stricken out on the ground that they were made under the inducement of hopes and pressure of fear. The motion was denied. Detective Rogers testified that he heard Jachne come to Inspector Byrnes in March last. His story was substantially the same as that of Byrne. John Scott testified that Geo W Walker, Jachne's former clerk, told him that the bodle had been kept in Jachne's safe over night. When he left the witness stand District Attorney Martine announced that the prosecution rested.

Counsel for the defense moved that the indictment be dismissed, as the grand jury had been tricked into making a false presentment. Judge Barrett overruled the motion. Counsel for the defense then made the opening argument, wherein Byrnes and District Attorney Martine were accused of arresting Jachne in order to save themselves as Jachne's testimony before the senate committee implicated them in compounding a felony. The prisoner at the bar being placed on the stand in his own behalf testified he had been intimate with Byrnes but denied emphatically having told him as alleged that he had received money for his vote. He had never received nor asked nor been promised money for his vote. Witness reviewed the conversation between himself and Byrnes at the latter's house but denied that Byrnes ever asked him if he received money for his vote. Witness made flat denials of other well known theories implicating him, and testimony was closed and arguments begun. At 11 o'clock instructions were given and the jury retired to consult on a verdict.

NEW YORK, May 16—At 1:10 o'clock this morning the jury in the Jachne trial rendered a verdict of guilty. Jachne received the verdict with head erect.

A Slugging Match

ITHACA, N Y, May 15—The Ashton Conley fight to night was stopped by the sheriff in the middle of the third round. The referee declared the fight a draw through interference of authorities, but decided that Ashton had the most clear hits. Desperate hogging and slugging characterized the entire struggle, Conley continually clinching. In the first round Conley rushed furiously at Ashton swinging his right. Ashton countered sharply with his left and terrible close fighting and an interchange of sledge hammer blows followed, the round ending in a clinch with honors easy. Second round—The men toed the scratch. Conley was breathing hard but went desperately to work letting go right and left for Ashton's head. Ashton met the onslaught with both bowers, and got in some terrible blows. Third and last round—Ashton came cheerfully to the scratch. Conley was less fearful in his plan. It was a continuation of hard slugging and hugging constantly broken by the referee. During one of the embraces Sheriff Fitzgerald jumped into the ring, waved his cane sending the men back into their corners and ending the fight.

European Weather

LONDON, May 15—The weather in France is cold and squally. Terrific storms have occurred throughout the country near Montpelier. Vineyards have been destroyed. The damage is placed at 1,000,000 francs. A hurricane passed over the town and partially destroyed it. Several persons were killed and a number injured. Severe gales have also been experienced in Germany. Two ships lying in the river Offer foundered and five persons drowned. A cyclone which passed over Lonato a town of Lombardy, destroyed a large number of houses. Five persons were killed.

Sparks Reversed Again

WASHINGTON, May 15—The secretary of the interior has rendered a decision in the case of L. M. Sherman and others of Dakota in which he reverses the decision of Commissioner Sparks and holds that Sherman, who held a second mortgage on a tract of land, the entry of which had been cancelled by the land office, was a party in interest and of such standing in the case that he might be heard to maintain the validity of the entry in question.

Public Meetings Forbidden

BERLIN, May 15—General surprise has been caused by publication in the Reichsanzeiger of a decree forbidding holding of public meetings in Berlin and Potsdam and their environs without police authority and stating that permission must be asked 48 hours in advance of the time when it is proposed to hold the meeting. The decree is issued under provisions of Article 8 of the anti socialist law.

The Markets

NEW YORK, May 15—Money quiet and easy, 1½ to 2, prime mercantile paper 4 to 5. Sterling exchange dull steady, actual rates 4 80½ for 60 days, 4 86 for demand. Government bonds dull and steady. The stock market was the quietest of the week. Nothing transpired on the street to affect quotations except Oregon Transcontinental. It is reported that a Philadelphia party disaffected with the present management, are buying for control and in event of their success Phillips with is to be succeeded by Brayton Ive. Active trading to-day almost everything was lower fractionally from 1/8 to ½ per cent. Prices continued heavy for a short time but the declines were very slight and then a rallying set in and remained steady to the close of the regular hours of the day. In the last hour and a half toward 5 o'clock, the market closing heavy. Oregon Transcontinental shows a net loss of 1 per cent.

After the passage of a bill establishing a sub treasury at Louisville the house proceeded to consideration of a bill for the appointment of a commission to inspect and report on Indian affairs to which the afternoon was devoted without action being taken.

At the evening session eulogies on the life and public services of the late Representative Michael Hahn of Louisiana were delivered by Messrs St Martin Blanchard and Gay of Louisiana, O'Donnell of Michigan, Lyman of Iowa, Ely of Massachusetts and Pettibone of Tennessee and then as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased the house adjourned.

A Southern Tragedy

JACKSONVILLE, May 15—A special from Bartow, Fla., to the Times Union says: This afternoon W. Campbell, marshal of Bartow, and a policeman named McCormick were shot by Dan and Lon Mann, brothers. They had a difficulty with a merchant, the officers interfered and Dan Mann drew a pistol and shot Campbell through the heart. At the same instant Lon Mann fired on McCormick, wounding him desperately. The Manns jumped into a buggy and drove off at a furious rate. The sheriff and a posse pursued and captured and brought them to jail. Citizens are much excited and fears are entertained of an attempt at lynching. The jail is securely guarded. McCormick is still living but will die.

A Pension Point

WASHINGTON, May 15—The secretary of the interior to-day rendered a decision in a case appealed to him from the commissioners of pensions by a Washington law firm, which has issued a circular offering to collect for a contingent fee of 25 per cent certain bounties which they claimed were due to the widows of soldiers killed in battle by the provisions of sec 1 to 165 of the revised statutes, passed March 13 1866. The secretary sustains the commissioner and decides that the half pay for five years provided for and this section was not a bounty but a pension. The effect of this decision it is thought will be the abandonment of this class of claims.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

To Morrow Night's Performance at the Opera House.

The Alsberg Sheridan Morrison combination closed a very successful week's engagement at the Tabor Grand opera house at Denver last night and will appear at the opera house here to morrow night. Of this company's performance of Measure for Measure, the Denver Times says:

Shakespeare's long list of noble women does not contain a more perfect and loveable character than his Isabella in "Measure for Measure." Living at a morally corrupt center in a corrupt age, surrounded by social vice tempted to sin, which the strongest and most acute would convince her would under the circumstances be a charity, she still maintains her womanly purity at the same time excusing, that in others which she would abhor in herself. True to her brother as to her maidenly instincts she continues her efforts in his behalf under circumstances which would be appalling to one less persevering and less fearless in the right.

Miss Alsberg gave an interpretation of this noble character at the Tabor opera house last night. Certainly she looked as pretty in her novice garb as Shakespeare could have desired that his heroine should appear. Certainly too she gives a more accurate and praiseworthy rendition of this character than that of Imogen in "Cymbeline." Her work in Isabella is even and seldom strained and her reading generally correct. She never fails to be interesting though she may not rise to the height of [illegible] or show herself capable of interpreting in accordance with the highest requirements of art the delicate feelings which sway the gentle Isabel in the trying scenes which she is called upon to portray. She is as yet a little too much of a statue in many places. However the character is as difficult as it is beautiful, and there are very few actresses capable of producing the ideal Isabel. Considering her age and experience, Miss Alsberg deserves much praise for her work.

Mr Sheridan as the duke, and Mr. Morrison as Angelo, divided the honors quite evenly, Mr Sheridan's work being more praiseworthy than in "Cymbeline," and Mr Morrison's less so. Mr Sheridan gave last night a most enjoyable rendition of the character of the duke. Mr Morrison was the finished actor that he ever is, but he did not seem in good form last evening.

The remainder of the cast was excellent. The comedy part of it was superb. It would be difficult, indeed, to produce a better Pompey than Mr Paul's and Mr Thompson's Lucio was delicious. Belmour's Elbow and Boy's Froth were also artistically rendered and well calculated to produce merriment. Mr. Wessell's Claudio was strong and Mr Staley's Escalus even, dignified and appropriately rendered.

Take the programme throughout, it was one of the most excellent ever given anywhere, a credit to the company and a rich treat to the audience. A Shakespearean revival worthy of the name.

A Sarcastic Novelist

An English novelist of sufficient repute to have his books pirated by the "Great Pirate Munro" of New York, without receiving any "insult" in return (as Mr Gilbert considers a small remittance), has forwarded him the following epistle:

DEAR SIR—I observe that you were kind enough to reprint a novel of mine which had previously appeared in a London illustrated journal. I thank you for the compliment. Sometimes (though I admit the practice is uncommon) such compliments are accompanied by an inconsiderable pecuniary acknowledgement. This the poor devil ridden hack of an author always receives with satisfaction, not that it gratifies any desire in him for pelf for, on the whole he prefers to write for nothing, but that it enables him to go about telling his friends that the legends of American literary piracies are a mere monstrous lie and should be suppressed like any other piece of flat mendacity. I don't know whether you would like to put the undersigned in a position to denounce every one on this side who says that the morals of the American publishing trade won't wash better than some American dyed calicoes. I dare say you would not, but you might. It is on the poor basis of an off chance that I venture to lay the suggestion before you and having now discharged what I felt to be my duty in the matter, I beg to remain, dear sir, your obliged obedient servant.

To [illegible], Esq., New York.

P S. Since you printed my book for nothing, it would be ungracious in me to criticise the style of its production, and personally indeed, I like your American mode of spelling. There is a phonetic simplicity about it disclosing a readiness on the printer's part to spell by ear when there is no dictionary handy, which I appreciate and even respect. It reminds me of a period in my own school life when I was often puzzled to understand why a person should not be allowed to spell as he damn pleased. But some people here don't approve it. They go so far as to say that certain of the idiosyncrasies I refer to betray an unfamiliarity with or a callousness respecting, the rules and requirements of the "poor creature." Orthography, which results in giving to an original work (be it good or bad in itself) the appearance of an indifferent translation. They say, further, that before you decide finally to reject the Chinaman from among you, you should give him one last chance as a typesetter, suffering your own compositors to confine their attention to such home-made works as sermons and speeches in congress, for which in their literary form, it may not be indecent to assume that there is no extravagant demand beyond the limits of your own free and happy and unsophisticated republic.

The Physical Differences

The Nineteenth Century.

Now, can any one seriously argue that, on the physical side, divergence of pursuits and habits is not indicated for the sexes? The common sense of mankind has long ago answered the question, and even our female reformers, I believe, admit that plowing and driving cattle, soldiering, and sailoring are not appropriate to women, nor feeding and rocking children, nursing the sick, and keeping house to men. Not that women have not as much physical strength and energy in their own kind as men in theirs, but that energy appears to have a different scope. Men would find the common tasks of women desperately fatiguing and irksome; a man, for instance, would certainly not cultivate manly strength and energy as a child's nurse; yet the nurse exercises a great deal of strength, carrying and nursing a heavy child. The ignoring of this differentiation of physical energy in the two sexes is always the note of barbarism or degradation among mankind. Where you find women put to tasks which do not suit with their physical constitution and functions, a practice always evidenced by premature decrepitude—there you have a people low in the scale of humanity. Now, human nature being all of a piece, it is but reasonable to think that a divergence as between the sexes in pursuits and habits which is strongly indicated and admitedly wise on one side of it, is likely to be wise on the other. The energy of women as it differs in kind and in scope from that of men in physical matters, so differs in moral and intellectual matters. No doubt it is not so easy to discriminate between the intellectual and moral powers of men and women as between their bodily powers; but there is a real difference throughout their being, and it ought to be (as at present it practically is) recognized in the scope of their action as members of the commonwealth.

Delivered According to Contract.

From the Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

A. G Lebroke, of Foxcroft once swapped an old wagon with Farmer Graves for four cords of wood. Graves signed a contract written by Lebroke, to the effect that Graves should deliver Lebroke four cords of merchantable wood. Where the wood should be delivered was not stated.

Many months went by and Lebroke received no wood. Happening in Guilford, he asked the old man about it.

"Oh, yes," said Graves, "I've got your wood and it's as nice a lot of wood as ever you saw. You just come and look at it."

He took Lebroke into the woods and showed him four cords of excellent cordwood piled up in the forest.

"There, Squire Lebroke," said he, "I deliver that wood to you." Turning to a neighbor who had accompanied him he added, "And I want you to witness that I deliver this wood to Mr. Lebroke."

The senator had to hire a teamster to haul the wood to Foxcroft. He says it was the first and only time he ever was beaten on a contract that he wrote himself.

Manager of the GAZETTE.

It is a common regret that companies that play Shakespeare in Denver do not usually come to the Springs. The reason given is that it won't pay. If there is a liberal patronage of the Alsberg Morrison-Sheridan company on Monday night, it may correct this wrong impression. It is not often that we have a company so worthy of generous support as this.

Jaehne's statements did not go far with the jury. He was convicted on his own statements to another which he denied making. His conviction was really obtained because public sentiment believed he was bribed and demanded his punishment. It will have the most healthful effect on public morals of anything since the time of Tweed. Most people in this country put up a high standard for our public servants. Men may be corrupt and steal for a while. But it must be kept from view. The instant the public knows and realizes it, such men are doomed. The public sentiment is strong and sound on all such questions. If there is wrong doing, it is not by general consent. It is a complete answer to those enemies of our institutions who say the body politic is corrupt and rotten.

Our dispatches state that Postmaster Speer of Denver was acquitted of the charge of perjury. The verdict was received with great enthusiasm by his friends. The criticisms on District Attorney Hobson seem to us unfair and uncalled for. He may have made a mistake, but no one who knows him will believe he intended to go beyond his duty. He started to prosecute all frauds irrespective of social or political position of the parties. But notwithstanding our respect for Mr. Hobson, we are glad that Mr. Speer was acquitted. He is a young man who has commanded the full confidence of a great many good men and must be deserving of it. His administration of the postoffice has been extremely good. He has steadily resisted the importunities of his party to make a partisan administration. He has kept in office all the heads of departments appointed under the republican administration. As an official he has been clean and high minded.

Yesterday there were a good many visitors at the Klackner exhibition of etchings at the Consolidated Book Store yesterday. Several parties wish further time to examine the collection and Mr. Woerner will stay over until Monday night. Among the pictures that are attracting most attention are the following: 'The Vesper Hour' painted by Mrs. Clements and etched by J. S. King; 'Autumn' by Henry Farrah; 'The Coming Storm' by Thomas Moran; 'In an Old Orchard' by Peter Moran; Along the Beach by Mrs. Moran; and Indian Summer by Benj. Landor. These are among the best examples of the American school and are worthy of comparison with many of the works of the older French school. They do not simply show technical skill in drawing and printing, but they have the other essential qualities of the best art, thought and feeling. If we look at Farrah's "Autumn," the first impression is that of quietness and peace, and we notice the details only when we look to see how this feeling is expressed. It is also worthy of remark that our artists in these pictures have only pure and elevating thoughts to express. We have no dirt school. The atmosphere is pure, clear and fresh.

The reading room will receive substantial help from the receipts of the entertainments of Friday night and Saturday afternoon. It ought to be placed on a more permanent basis however. There ought to be a hundred men who will give a five dollar subscription annually. This would cover its present expenses. Then could be another class of subscriptions of a dollar a year that would take two or three hundred people. This would enable its managers to have a still better list of periodicals. The room has been used by a large number of people this winter and the need of such a room has been demonstrated. But it can with greater means occupy a larger and more useful field. It should not lose its popular character but at the same time it should appeal to the educated and thoughtful. It may be the beginning of a public library and reading room that will have a strong educating influence in this community. It needs to be a good reference library and a full list of the best monthly and quarterly reviews and weekly papers. Few educated people in this city have either in their homes and any place that was well furnished in these respects would be a great convenience. It ought not to be a place to receive books that are of no value to the owners. Good books are in the library, but many of the gifts are rubbish and are not deserving of shelf room anywhere. The Misses Mr. Cragg and others who have amid so many difficulties established this institution and shown that there is reason for its existence deserve great praise. They have had faith that it would ultimately occupy such a position as we have indicated above. They have been satisfied with a small beginning, but only as a beginning. It is a good time for more to rally to the assistance of that will give us a better library and a better list of periodicals. There are private associations that have much up the reading. The present list is not all worthy of the place. We hope there will be more general cooperation in order that this institution shall be representative of the intelligent and enterprising inhabitants and be useful to a much wider circle of our citizens.

LITERARY NOTES

Laurence Oliphant has written another novel entitled 'Masollam: A Problem of the Period.'

Ticknor & Co. will shortly publish 'The Pilgrimage of Percival Letters,' and a collection of Aken's society.

'The Wind of Destiny' is the title of a striking tale of Lieutenant Arthur S. Hardy, which Houghton, Mifflin & Co. will issue in a few weeks.

The first of a series of papers by Philip Gilbert Hamerton will appear in the July Atlantic. Their subject is the contrast between French and English life.

Another novel is coming from the pen of Mrs. Oliphant, surely the most prolific writer of her time. It is called 'Hill Ophrie,' the story of a Young Life.

'Red Nosed Frost,' is the title of a new Russian story, not bearing the Tolstoi stamp, but Russian in its scenes of the poem. Copies are in the hands of Ticknor & Co.

'It is a little curious,' says a London Dispatch, 'that while Mr. James Beaconsfield's last book is a bitter attack on Russia, the book is a bitter attack on Russia.'

Edwin Arnold's 'The Wreath of Life' will be reprinted in this country by the J. B. Lippincott company. The same house will publish Mrs. Harris Gould's story, 'Court Royal.'

The Macmillan and Scribner's have cheapened to one and fifty cents a piece their popular novels. The list includes Henry James, Howells, Dr. Claudius, 'Bystander,' and John Inglesant.

All that is popularly known of Mrs. Argles—the lady who writes under the pseudonym of 'The Duchess'—is that she sometimes wears a minute-patterned chintz gown, looking not unlike a bed curtain, and that she has a marvellously soft, sweet voice.

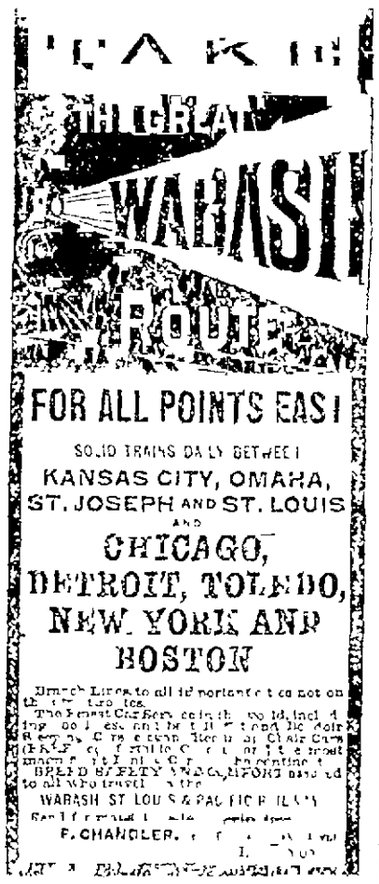
Under the title of Greater Greece and Greater Britain, the Macmillans will presently bring out the lecture delivered at Oxford by Professor E. A. Freeman—the original title being 'George Washington, the Expander of England.' They have also in the press another volume by Professor Freeman—'The Methods of Historical Study.'

The first volume of 'Monthly Catalogue of Government Publications' is now complete, twelve numbers having been published by Mr. Hickcox. The American Bookseller says: 'As the trade has as yet found no use for it, and the apathy of librarians is beyond comprehension in the face of the fact that there is in existence no other guide to the immense, valuable and increasing collection of government publications.'

A Heavenly Wonder

From the San Francisco Call.

When the rain had ceased the other evening, an elegantly attired young man planted a large telescope at the edge of the sidewalk on Market street, near Dupont, and at once began: 'Step this way, ladies and gentlemen, and without any charge whatever, behold the beautiful orbs of the heavens in all their magnificence.' The rain has cleared the atmosphere and the wondrous glory of the universe above is revealed to the admiring eye through this perfect telescope. He pointed the tube at one of the larger stars, gazed through it a moment, and then resumed his discourse, dilating on the splendors of Venus and giving a history of the mythical goddess after whom the planet was named. Soon a man stopped to peer through the instrument. Another followed his example, and before long there was an extended line of people of both sexes waiting their turn to see. Meanwhile the orator continued his fervid eloquence, while one star gazer after another glued his eyes to the opening. A reporter who observed the peculiar way in which all of them were affected and the solemn way in which they skipped waited for five minutes in profound wonder, and when he finally got up to the telescope and looked in, saw, in greatly enlarged characters, these words: 'Buy Blowhard's Soap. See the Trade-mark is on every Bar.'



It is worth remembering that everybody enjoys the most surrounding self in health. There are miserable people about to day with one foot in the grave to whom a bottle of Parker's Tonic would do more good than all the doctors and medicines they have ever used. dsatwl 1 y

China's Great Wall.

Mr. Richardson, of the Davenport, (Ia.,) Democrat, who is now engaged in a tour around the world, says in a recent letter to his paper, written at Peking, that the great wall of China is the greatest of the world's wonders. It crosses a mountain range and gorge about forty miles from Peking, and the journey thither is tough and perilous. It took six mortal hours to make the last fifteen miles. To quote from the letter:

"Squeezing through the last deep gorge and a deep rift in the solid rock cut out by ages of rolling wheels and trampling feet, we reached the great frowning, double, bastioned gate of stone and hard-burned brick—the archway tubbed in. This was the object of our mission—the great wall of China, built 215 years before our era; built of great slabs of well hewn stone, laid in regular courses twenty feet high and topped out with large hard-burned brick, filled with earth and closely paved on top with more dark, tawny brick—the ramparts high and thick and castellated for use of arms. Right and left the great wall sprung far up the mountain side, now straight, now curved to meet the mountain ridge, turreted each 300 feet, a frowning mass of masonry. No need to tell you of this great wall—the books will tell you that—how it was built to keep the warlike Tartars out—twenty-five feet high by forty thick—1,200 miles long, with room on top for six horses to be rode abreast. Nor need I tell you that for 1,400 years it kept those hordes at bay—not that in the main the material upon it is just as good and firm and strong as when put in place. To tell you how one feels while standing on this vast work, scrutinizing its old masonry, its queer old cannon, and ambitious sweep along the mountain crest, were only folly. In speechless awe we strolled or sat and gazed in silent wonder. Twelve hundred miles of this gigantic work, built on the rugged, cragged mountain tops, vaulting over gorges, spanning wild streams, netting the river archways with huge, hard bars of copper; with double gates, with swinging doors and bars set thick with iron armor—a wonder in the world before which the old time classic seven wonders, all gone now save the great pyramid, were merest trifles—toys. The great pyramid has 85,000,000 cubic feet; the great wall 6,850,000,000 cubic feet. An engineer in Seward's party here some years ago gave it as his opinion that the cost of this wall, figuring labor at the same rate, would more than equal that of all the 100,000 miles of railroad in the United States. The material it contained would build a wall six feet high and two feet thick right straight around the globe. Yet this was done in only twenty years, without a trace of debt or bond. It is the greatest individual labor the world has ever known. You stand before it as before the great Omnipotent—bowed and silent."

Irrigation Water from Ditches.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS.

Read the following sections of An Ordinance relating to ditches and the distribution therefrom for irrigating purposes

SECTION 7 All persons wanting their premises irrigated from the ditch water shall connect their premises with the ditches by a box across the sidewalk not less than sixteen inches wide and eight inches deep in the clear The sides of said boxes to be constructed of two inch plank and to be properly covered on the top, and said box to be built in such manner that the top of the same will not project above sidewalk, and shall provide one box for each fifty feet frontage of land or fractional part thereof

SEC. 8 The flooding of premises for irrigation shall be done exclusively by the superintendent of irrigation his deputy and men under his charge, and the maximum time allowed for irrigating each fifty feet frontage of land shall be fifteen minutes

SEC. 10. Any person turning the water from the ditches on their own or on others premises without permission from the superintendent of irrigation shall be deemed guilty of an offense and upon conviction therefor be fined not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars

SEC 11 Any person who shall wilfully obstruct any ditch constructed in compliance with the provisions of this ordinance, or divert or turn the water from the same, without permission from the superintendent of irrigation, or shall open, close, raise or lower any of the gates connected therewith or interfere with the same in any manner, or shall interfere with the superintendent of irrigation his deputy or men in his employ in any manner or shall violate any of the provisions of the ordinance shall be deemed guilty of an offense, and upon conviction therefor be fined in a sum not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars

The mayor and council in charge have investigated the irrigation of lawns and gardens and find that but few of the boxes conducting the water from the ditches to the lawns are of proper size, and that if the boxes were of size required by the ordinance all will get all the water necessary

It is desired that all should commence with the council in this matter by complying with the ordinance and while you furnish proper sized boxes, don't blame the council

A strict compliance with this ordinance will be expected and enforced

BY ORDER OF THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL.
